OUR COMMITMENT TO THE LONE STAR STATE IS STRONGER THAN EVER.

At JPMorgan Chase, we’re working hard to support the institutions and municipalities that support all of us. Since the start of 2009, we have committed or helped raise more than $12 billion for educational institutions, municipalities, and healthcare providers in Texas.

One example of our commitment is Cook Children’s Health Care System. We raised close to $195 million in bonds to help finance the expansion of its main campus in Ft. Worth, resulting in many new job openings. With improvements such as 51 new beds, renovations to its surgery pavilions, and two new helipads for emergencies, Cook Children’s will be able to provide better service to more patients and their families.

In Texas and across the nation, our determination to connect clients and capital is just the beginning. We will continue to support our communities responsibly and move America forward.
